

BIOGRAPHY

Dr. Mahantesh C. Elemmi was born in the year 1980, in Ron, Gadag district of Karnataka state, India. He graduated from Basaveshwar Engineering College, Bagalkot, affiliated to Visvesvaraya Technological University, Belagavi, Karnataka, India. He received his Ph. D in Computer and Information Science from Visvesvaraya Technological University, Belagavi. He is currently working as Professor in CSE Department at Jain College of Engineering and Research, Belagavi, Karnataka. He received B.E. (CSE) from Karnataka University Dharwad & M. Tech (CSE) from Visvesvaraya Technological University, Belagavi. He received his Ph.D. in Computer and Information Science from Visvesvaraya Technological University, Belagavi, Karnataka. He has got more than 21 years of impeccable academic track record. He has guided various undergraduate and post-graduate projects, out of which many of the projects have been selected in state level and national level project exhibition competitions. Some of the projects got awarded in KSCST (State level) and FAER (Motorola, International) project exhibition competitions. He has received Motorola scholar award for the project entitled “Chronic obstructive pulmonary disease recognition from X-ray and CT images” in the Year 2014-15. He has received KSCST project of the year award for the project entitled “Colour and Size Based Indian Grapes Variety Identification and Quality Grading from Images” in the year 2014-15. His project sponsored by Motorola entitled “A rule-based classification of human brain strokes using CT images” got shortlisted in the final round in the year: 2015-16. His research interests include Image processing, Neural Networks, Pattern recognition and Knowledge based systems. He has published 15 research papers in reputed international journals.